

Teacher of Economics

Full time or Part time*, Permanent: Starting September 2024

Salary: MPS - UPS depending on experience

Suitable for teachers at all stages of their career including ECTs

We are seeking a Teacher of Economics to join our dedicated staff team. We welcome applications from specialists who are excited to teach Economics to our highly motivated students.

Economics is a popular subject in the Sixth Form where students attain outstanding results in an internationally recognised qualification. Many students go on to study Economics and related courses such as Business, International Relations, Politics and Philosophy at university.

Each year students use the skills and interests developed in Economics to complete extended essays. Recent topics have included: subsidies on heat pumps in Ireland, Hong Kong's housing market, gender pay gap in banking and the consequences of fast fashion. There is a vibrant enrichment programme including student-led societies, guest speakers, competitions and visits including the London Financial District.

A full-time post is available for applicants who are able to teach another subject, for example within humanities. Early Careers Teachers - this position offers an exciting opportunity for someone wishing to start their career at an outstanding school.
